

spindler22@aol.com

July 24, 2004 7:19 AM

Re: No Subject

Deepak:

Your job search seems to move back and forth as far as objectives and tactics. I suggest you lock in a target and then go for it.

- is it Japan?
- is it based in Japan?
- is it based in NYC with Japan as a target?

You are right in stating that Japan is (and will continue) emulating the US. Not so China and India; there are just too shrewd to respect anybody or their methods. With economic stagnation in Japan, the restructuring and consolidation is a must and should open opportunities for US firms if they take the interest. This is not an IPO world any more over there.

I understand the real estate market in the Bay Area is spotty but generally on the upside. Certainly in homes around one million.

Things here are moving along. We should be in our new place in two weeks or so.

Stay in touch
Michael